AROUND the TOWNSHIP

Visitors from the Argentine, Senor and Senora Pedro Baudonnet were in Niles last week. * * * *

It was a busy day for Ray Gallegos of Irvington, father of 14 children. What with acting as a volunteer interpreter for his two companions hauled into the Centerville Justice Court on drunk charges, pleading his own case, collecting money from various sources to pay his fine and keep a six-inch lock of hair in order, he had the judiciary and the spectators in a hilarious mood.

One companion, Angel Sotelo, was charged with drunk driving. He claimed no knowledge of English and Gallegos came to the rescue. "Guilty or not guilty?" asked Judge Allen G. Norris. "Si," said the interpreter after conferring with the defendant. "Si, what?" the judge inquired—"si, guilty or si, not guilty?" "Yes," answered the interpreter solemnly. "Guilty or not guilty—which?" the judge demanded. "Sure," answered Gallegos.

Blas Gallardo pleaded guilty to being drunk in a car as did Gallegos. "Ten dollars or three days," said the judge. "Have you the money?" "Si," answered Gallegos. "Gallardo got $12—$10 for him, $2 for me—I go get eight more." And in a few minutes he was back with a handful of change and another suggestion.

"Sotello go to jail, I drive his car home." "That's up to Sotello," the judge said. "Does he want you to drive his car home?" "Si," retorted Gallegos. The judge blinked. "You're a good manager, Gallegos."

"Si," grinned the defendant interpreter chauffeur and departed jauntily with Gallardo to drive Sotello's car, since Sotello unfortunately did not have $50.

DAD HAS HIS DAY

Hey, Dad—June 18 is your day!

Ten to one, he doesn't know it. And if he did, we bet he'd take the news with a grain of salt.

So don't be surprised if, on discovering the fact, he says, "A day in honor of Dad? What bosh!"

For he's the man who works, saves, and buys the car—and then finds someone else in the family is using it when he wants to drive down town.

With June vacations at hand, he's the man who eagerly hunts for his fishing tackle and finds Mother is using the reel for a clothes-line. He's the man who discovers his favorite old outdoor jacket, which he wanted to take along, has just been given to charity.

He's the man who looks forward to a restful weekend, and finds the boys have been too busy having fun to cut the lawn, so he gets out and pushes the mower under a broiling sun to keep his front yard from becoming the disgrace of the neighborhood.

He's the man who, anticipating a game of golf on Saturday afternoon, finds that Daughter, making a play for an eligible young man, has lent his clubs to the boy friend, undoubtedly saying, "Dad won't mind a bit!"

And he doesn't—a great deal. He probably won't mind even if you forget about him on Father's day. But we have a sneaking hunch, he'll be awfully pleased if you remember!
